

Solent 250 listing 2019

The top 250 private companies in the Solent region are listed on these pages. The Solent 250, an annual list sponsored by HSBC, law firm Irwin Mitchell, business advisers and accountants RSM, and CMA Recruitment Group, the accountancy, finance, executive and HR consultancy, focuses on companies headquartered in the area.

The TV and radio broadcast specialist Arqiva continues to lead the pack, out front with nearly £1 billion of sales. But among those growing fast are Hendy Group, the car dealership firm that has acquired new franchises during the past year, and Sunseeker, founded in Poole back in 1969 by Robert Braithwaite, and now employing 2,500 skilled designers, engineers and craftsmen. Indeed, Sunseeker has seen a 52% rise in orders for its luxury boats year on year outside the UK because of the Brexit effect.

Southern Cooperative is another success story on the Solent 250 list. With total group income of £431 million it opened 16 stores in the past financial year and shared £2.9m profit with its members. Established in Portsmouth more than 140 years ago, it is moving some of its stores from its managed state to a new franchise model.

Imperial Car Supermarkets has proved a winner – jumping to £142m turnover in the past year. The expanding car retailer, which now has sites throughout the country, has set its sights on reaching 20 used car supermarkets by the end of 2019. Operating profits have jumped nearly 70% in the past year.

Ceuta Healthcare, based in Bournemouth, is a brilliant example of a start-up – founded after the owner sold the family home – that has grown to become a multi-award-winning business operating internationally.

In a list with so many successful companies, not all can be highlighted. With turnovers ranging from £1 billion to £13 million, there's a wide sweep of businesses on the list. Household names include Lush, Fat Face, Stannah, Ordnance Survey, and Farrow & Ball, but there are many 'unsung heroes' too.
